

Preservation Architect

Quinn Evans Architects is seeking a full-time Preservation Architect to work on a high-profile rehabilitation of one of Detroit's most iconic buildings. Candidate must be a collaborative team player, possess excellent technical knowledge, and have a passion for preservation and adaptive-reuse work. Position involves substantial time generating construction documents, developing construction details, and coordinating work within a large team environment.

Qualifications:

- Professional degree in architecture with minimum 8 to 12 years' experience working on preservation and adaptive reuse projects; experience with historic tax credits a plus.
- Thorough knowledge of construction documentation and specifications.
- In-depth knowledge of construction materials and assemblies, including existing construction and historic finishes.
- Working knowledge of building codes and the ability to coordinate with engineering systems.
- Proficient with Revit, Adobe Creative Suite, and Microsoft Office; experience with Newforma or Deltek software a plus.
- Attention to detail, organized, and self-motivated.
- Collaborative problem-solving skills with a professional work ethic.
